The Christian law also has necessarily its priesthood to carry out the Divine service, the principal act of which is the Eucharisti

c Sacrifice

, the figure and renewal of that of Calvary. This

priesthood

has two degrees: the first, total and complete, the second an incomplete participation of the first. The first belongs to the

bishop

. The

bishop

is truly a priest (

sacerdos

), and even a

high-priest

; he has chief control of the Divine worship (

sacrorum antistes

), is the president of

liturgical

meetings; he has the fullness of the

priesthood

, and administers all the

sacraments

. The second degree belongs to the priest (

presbyter

), who is also a

sacerdos

, but of the second rank ("secundi sacerdotes"

Innocent I

ad Eugub.); by his priestly

ordination

he receives the power to offer sacrifice (i.e. to celebrate the Eucharist), to forgive

sins

, to

bless

, to preach, to sanctify, and in a word to fulfil the non-reserved

liturgical

duties

or priestly functions. In the exercise of these functions, however, he is subject to the authority of the

bishop

to whom he has promised canonical obedience; in certain cases even he requires not only authorization, but real

jurisdiction

, particularly to forgive

```
sins
```

and to take care of

souls

. Moreover, certain acts of the sacerdotal power, affecting the

society

of which the

bishop

is the head, are reserved to the latter — e.g. confirmation, the final rite of

Christian

initiation,

ordination

, by which the ranks of the

clergy

are recruited, and the solemn

consecration

of new

temples

to

God

. Sacerdotal powers are conferred on priests by priestly

ordination

, and it is this

ordination

which puts them in the highest rank of the

hierarchy

after the

bishop

More